“This is not just a story about finding true love .... It is the story of a woman finding herself, finding her direction in life through her grief and confusion. ... The plot flow steadily increases as the story moves on adding just enough twists and complications to keep the reader hungry for more.”

Kara Hartz, reviewer from *Listen and Be Heard

Searching for herself in the world of the elite.

LK Hunsaker grew up creating stories in the midst of a widely artistic family. With a passion for books, music, and art, her writing career began with musical plays as a child and swelled to include poetry, short stories, novels, and non-fiction. Mother of two and wife of a US Army veteran, she has lived and traveled in many states and countries while earning a degree in psychology and studying both relationships and cultural issues. Along with continuous work on her writing, she is a network coordinator for a Sandplay center and part of a musician’s online management team.
